

Governor Kirk Visits Glades

Governor Claude Kirk visited Belle Glade Friday. He attended a party given for Republican candidates "Skip" Bafalis and Don Reed. The Governor made no commitments about particular Glades issues, said his host Dr. John L. Grady. Kirk did drive to Belle Glade over state Road 80, Grady said, and said he was aware of the highway and peddler problems peculiar to this area.

Meeting the Governor were leaders from all areas. Executives from each of the sugar mills and agricultural cooperatives as well as civic leaders and growers were in attendance.

Kirk's appearance at the gathering was a surprise to many present. One man was overheard to remark "My daughter asked me if I was going to the party where the Governor would be. I told her Kirk wasn't coming to Belle Glade and top spreading rumors. Now I'll have to go home and apologize."

Kirk was pleased with his reception, Reed said, and aware of the progress being made in the peddler problem and the difficulties of maintaining State Road 80. Kirk said he would see that the road project was given its proper priority by the State Road Board, Reed said.

Kirk Slated To Speak At Waterways Meeting

Governor Claude Kirk will be the speaker at the Annual Meeting of the Okeechobee Waterway Association to be held in Belle Glade on March 24. The annual event celebrates the 30th Anniversary of the Okeechobee Waterways.

The Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a barbecue dinner under the pavilion at the Marina, as a fund raising project for the Okeechobee Waterways Association. Invitations are being extended to waterway leaders from all over the state of Florida, as well as a number of waterway groups on a national level.

The O. W. A. meeting closes following the Tallahassee Conference on Water Resources Developments. It is expected that Governor Kirk will be able to report on Florida's plans of waterways development to be presented to Congress for the coming fiscal year.

Waterway interests will be vitally interested as to what part of their plans as presented at the Conference last January will be included in the request for federal financing. At the same time that O. W. A. Executive Secretary, Howard S. Banfa, announced

The Sugar grinding season is closing with two firm grinding out this week and only the Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative, Belle Glade, remaining in operation.

The Cooperative is expected to grind out about the end of March.

The total Florida yield is up 16% this year to about 640,000 tons of sugar, raw value.

The largest increases in tonnage was shown by Florida Sugar which production rose 44% from 14,524 to 20,900 tons.

Another large gain was shown by Tallman, which was the first mill to grind out in February. Tallman production increased 32%, from 39,703 tons to 52,500 tons.

United States Sugar will grind out today with an estimated gain of 20%. The mills of United States Sugar will process about 240,000 tons this year.

Oseola, Pahokee, will grind out Sunday. The predicted total tonnage for this mill is 52,000 tons, from 44,000 tons last year.

Nelson Fairbanks, manager of the Florida Sugar League, said all information about mills not already finished are estimated but are expected to be quite accurate.

Producers are waiting for quotas to be decided. The hearing has been held and a decision is expected shortly, Fairbanks said. The quota is expected to be high as it is based in part on production.

The increase is attributed to the good growing season. The summer and fall were good growing weather with cool weather in the early fall raising the sucrose content. The harvesting weather was excellent and there were no freezes of any consequence.

Thought of the Week

A politician is like quick-silver; if you try to put your finger on him, you find nothing under it. Austin O'Malley.

All-Important Distinction

Freedom of expression is as basic and inalienable a right under representative government as freedom of the press. But, by no stretch of the imagination can the principle of freedom of expression be stretched to include mass defiance of laws governing an orderly society. Former Supreme Court Justice, Charles E. Whittaker, warns that "... history shows that every society which became lawless soon succumbed, and that the first evidences of each society's decay appeared in the toleration of disobedience of its laws and the judgments of its courts ... it can hardly be denied that a large part of our current rash and rapid spread of lawlessness has derived from planned and organized mass disrespect for, and defiance of, the law and the courts, induced by the irresponsible and 'inflammatory' preachments of some self-appointed leaders of minority groups ...

"The remedy is as plain as the threat. It is simply to insist that our governments, state and federal, reassure and discharge their 'first duty' of protecting the people against lawless invasions upon their persons and property by the impartial and vigorous enforcement of our criminal laws and by the swift, certain, and substantial punishment thereunder of all persons whose conduct violates those laws ..."

Those who genuinely believe in freedom of speech and press and all of our other freedoms in the United States should be well aware of the distinction between freedom and license.

POLITICAL TV NETWORK

The danger of government management of the news which has alarmed many Americans in the last few years, will become acute if the Johnson administration gets what it wants this year — namely, a television network under federal control.

At U. S. Rep. George A. Goodling recently pointed out in a speech in Congress, the 90th Congress will be asked to plant a seed for the growth of a vast educational television network financed largely by the federal government. The government would pay for its ETV Program just like it does for anything else — with tax money taken from the people.

This administration proposal should not be confused with state-operated ETV, which is performing a useful service in many states as an adjunct teaching aid.

The federal project is the brainchild of the Carnegie Commission on Educational Television. It has urged that a Corporation for Public Television be established as a federally chartered organization. The goal would be a network consisting of 380 "non-commercial" television stations. The theory behind the project is that because a station does not sell advertising time, it is entitled to receive governmental support. The initial appropriation to be requested is $60 million. Outlays during the early years of the project would be about $178 million annually, rising to $270 million a year beginning in 1971.

The federal television empire would be paid for by a manufacturers' excise tax on TV sets bought by the public. Thus the public would be subsidizing ing a federal propaganda operation.

While commercial television there is no significant move in this country for an American equivalent of the official British Broadcasting Corporation or any of the other government networks around the world. Indeed state-operated ETV stations give the view of public another opinion in televised material. Thus the national federal television network is a project that isn't based on a public demand.

The key to understanding this proposal is that the television network would be run by 12 directors. Six would be appointed by the President and the other six would be selected by the first group of federal appointees. They would have six-year terms of office, giving them enormous freedom to do as they pleased in programming.

This is an unprecedented proposal. It would, in effect, create a powerful agency of federal propaganda. For the first time in the history of the United States, government officials would be in the business of distributing news and opinion directly to the American people.

The situation at present is bad enough. The hundreds of federal press officers are continually engaged in managing or regulating the flow of news to the news media and the people. They frequently seek to prevent reporters from gaining access to stories of public significance. As a result, we have today what many in the press call a "credibility gap" in Washington. This is a public way of saying government officials tell lies.

Fortunately, Americans still have a free press. But the freedom of press in America would be gravely handicapped if a federal television network were established. One can be sure that the federal TV network would get the principal news, news, and told in such a way as to reflect credit on the officials and the party in power.

We know from the experience of other countries how a government-run TV network operates. In France, for example, government candidates seeking reelection are given more time on the air than are opposition candidates. After the campaign is officially closed, government spokesmen are allowed to appear and give their final arguments. We certainly don't want that kind of double-dealing in the United States.

EMORY STUDENTS RECEIVE FREEDOMS AWARD

Wayne Wood, Emory University student from Belle Glade, stands at extreme right. He and his fellow Emory students were shown at Valley Forge admiring the George Washington Honor Medal which they received from the Freedom Foundation for their project "Affirmation Vietnam." The Emory students staged a giant rally in Atlanta's stadium last February at which Secretary of State Dean Rusk spoke. They presented 200,000 signatures they had gathered in support of U. S. policy. In addition to the medal they received a check for $500 at the Valley Forge ceremonies. Howard "Bo" Callaway of the Freedom Foundation stands next to Wayne.

Uncle Dan From Doolie Says

Dear Mister Editor:
The fellers at the country store Saturday night was giving their horseback opinion on everything from foreign aid to bedbugs in Viet Nam and a fore it was over Clem Teviser of the Great Society and Ed Doolittle was, as Clem television politicians say, demanding equal time.

Ed was of the opinion with the Congress now in full swing no man's life, liberty or property is safe. He reported he had saw in the papers where we might increase our free wheat to India. He claimed we might as well pore our grain in the ocean as haul it across the ocean to India where the rats eat most of it on the docks and all them sacred cows eat the rest. Ed said it made him feel like the Great Society and Ed Doolittle was, as Clem television politicians say, demanding equal time.

We know from the experience of other countries how a government-run TV network operates. In France, for example, government candidates seeking reelection are given more time on the air than are opposition candidates. After the campaign is officially closed, government spokesmen are allowed to appear and give their final arguments. We certainly don't want that kind of double-dealing in the United States.

more than once. When both sides can blow up the other complex, Ed claimed, it doesn't much matter how high they can blow 'em, and he would sleep just as good if we wasn't using so much foreign aid in the peace program.

Clem was reporting on what fine progress we was making in the Great Society on our science programs. He said science now has found out the cockroach was a real helpful critter to man. He recollected how our soldiers in Viet Nam was using bedbugs to help find the enemy and now cockroaches was used in studying space because they can stand more of that radiation, more heat and cold, don't eat nothing or wait anything and they ain't bothered one way or the other by gravity. Clem says they has even got a national Society for the Preservation of the Crow because the crow is worth more by eating bugs than he is harmed by eating the crops.

Personal, Mister Editor, I don't act as Judge in these sessions, I just set and listen. And the longer I live the less faith I got in horseback opinions. They say causing was invented for the feller that was too mad to run and too scared to fight, and horseback talking was like a lantern with no match to light it. One sack of potatoes is better'n all you can say to a hungry man.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

Code Of Honor Too Strict For Academy?

By Lewis Llewellyn
Recently a number of cadets resigned from the Air Force Academy because they had violated the Academy's strict code of honor.

TALKED ABOUT EXAMINATIONS

According to statements given by authorities at the Academy, the violation of the honor code occurred when a few cadets adopted the practice of "discussing the contents of examinations with others scheduled to take the examinations during subsequent periods on the same day."

When other cadets found out about the violation, instead of reporting it, they became part of it. Eventually, the ugly truth burst into the open.

A congressman indicated that he thought the code was too strict, but high-ranking cadets disagreed. "It's like a stab in the back to find out that even a small number have been cheating," said one cadet officer.

When the current level of morality in Washington, as indicated by the fact that Adam Clayton Powell could continue for so many years abusing the trust of the nation before the stench became unbearable, one is not surprised that some believe that the Air Force Academy's code of honor is too rigid.

On the other hand, isn't it a good thing for the integrity of these young men to be put to the test while they are in training since we expect many of them to hold positions of great responsibility in later years?

The nation is proud of the overwhelming majority of Air Force Cadets, who adhere to the code of honor which they undertook to uphold when they entered the Academy. That 50 out of 2,500 should fail this test is perhaps to be expected.

The Bible says, "Provide things honest in the sight of all men." This is a good rule, not only for Air Force cadets, but for all of us.

A little-known fact is that there is a sizable group of cadets at the Air Force Academy who meet voluntarily for prayer and Bible study at 6:10 a. m., six days a week, under the leadership of the head chaplain.

One of these cadets says, "The most important decision of my life was made when I realized that Christ died for my sins and accepted Him as my personal Savior. At that moment I began a new life."

I can say from experience that this life is something greater than the most successful or rewarding life outside of Christ could ever be.

LIFE THAT COUNTS
The Christian cadets may not make the headlines, but they have found the answer to the life that counts.

Those who cheat, whether at the Air Force Academy or elsewhere, are cheating themselves most of all — because they are cheating themselves out of that which is most worthwhile in life.

Sermon Topics

Dr. S. H. Davies of West Palm Beach will have as his text Sunday morning at the Lake Harbor Methodist Church, "THE KING COMETH."

All Christians do not have the same value to society and to their church. Some can usher at the door while others can hold a large audience spellbound for God. Some will scatter notices around the neighborhood inviting friends to the services while others will go to Africa to invite the natives to Christ. Reward is promised for faithfulness in using whatever talents one has.

"I am the Lord; that is my name; and my glory will I not give to graven images." This passage from Isaiah is the Golden Text for this week's Lesson-Sermon titled "Matter" to be read in all Christian Science churches on Sunday.

The Bible is God's word and gives us the provisions for the end of our journey as well as the beginning. At the end of life's journey it is the only book to which man can turn for confidence as he faces the parting of the evil between the two eternities.

Fashion Show Was Presented By LS Students

The auditorium stage serve as the gallery for an important fashion exhibition entitled "Art In Fashion."

This inspirational educational showing was presented Wednesday, by Miss Geraldine Robins, of the Simplicity Pattern Company's educational staff. The collection of twenty exciting ensembles, each a unique fashion picture, is styled especially for teens and will be modeled by students of Lake Shore High.

"Primary Techniques" and "Fashion in Monochromes" will feature new "How to Sew" instruction chart to make sewing as simple as finger painting... and just as much fun!

Inspired by the "Art of Wardrobe Planning," clever teens will learn how to change the look of a basic costume with tasteful accessorizing. The group highlights a "busy basic" dress plus two jackets.

Throughout the entire collection, teens will be inspired to create their own fashion compositions... to enhance their portrait with good grooming and frame the total image with the right accessories. Simplicity's "Art in Fashion" will illustrate to every teen who sees, how she can be a critic's choice when she "makes and models" her own.
